

^_^ Dan Blacklock ^_^

Age: 21 (just had my birthday ☺)

My Major: International Relations (4th year)

Future Ambitions: Make millions with some genius business venture, or move to L.A. and become an unemployed actor.

About me: I was born in Barrow-in-Furness, England, but moved over here at the age of 12 for reasons still unbeknownst to me. I love to try new things, and especially enjoy eating crazy and exotic food. Because Japanese food is so amazingly delicious, I decided that I needed to learn the language so I would be able to eat an unhealthy amount of food I have never heard of if I ever visited.

And now's my chance! =D I also have secret ambitions to a comedy scriptwriter one day.

I think Japanese music is totally awesome. My favourite bands are Malice Mizer, The Gazette, and Dir En Grey.

My interest in Japan sprung from my over-zealous love of Pokemon as a child. I always wanted to be a Pikachu when I grew up. My dreams were crushed the day I found out that it wasn't possible, and the fact that pikachus never existed in the first place.

The first thing I am going to do in Japan is spend $100 in a convenience store, buying the wackiest Japanese snacks. In particular I want to buy a tube of processed egg. I don't know why, it just looks crazy. I plan on eating pretty much 24/7 in Tokyo and plan to return 50 pounds heavier than when I left.

どうぞよろしく!
