

Name: Ingrid Falkenberg-Andersen

Age: 20

Major/Minor: English/Japanese

Bio: I was born in Saskatchewan though I moved to Calgary when I was eight, and have henceforth considered myself a “native Calgarian”. Danish/Swedish by heritage, though all my Asian friends agree I’m Asian on the inside. I can understand fluent conversational Danish though I really don’t have much of an interest in Scandinavia. My interest in Japan started towards the end of high school and has been a passion since.

Personality: I have a hard time talking about what kind of person I am because it makes me feel self-centered when I do. I procrastinate terribly, so much so, in fact, that this is why my profile is up two weeks before we leave for Japan. I’m kind of lazy too—I like taking shortcuts. I’m a romantic who is a sucker for a good love story. I hate mornings and alarm clocks.

Interests: I enjoy reading, drawing, and writing fiction in my free time. I like to play piano and compose music on Garage Band though I’m fairly new to that. I’m also a hard-core gamer chick—favourites include Final Fantasy and Legend of Zelda series. I boycott Xbox products. I suck at team sports, but I do love downhill skiing, swimming, and karate.
